

ART & HOME
DESIGNING AROUND ART

AT WARP SPEED
WITH GEORGE TAKEI

BREWERS EAST
SOUTH FLORIDA CRAFT BEERS

CITY & SHORE

MAGAZINE

DAY AND NIGHT IN DELRAY BEACH

YOUR YEAR
BY THE BUYS

WHERE TO DINE
BEFORE OR AFTER THE SHOW

OUR CRITICS
GPS GUIDE TO THE ARTS

The Masterpiece Theater of
MICHAEL ISRAEL
at the Beaux Arts gala

NOVEMBER 2013

Designer: Jennifer Corredor
Photographer: Daniel Newcomb

Back story: When Corredor was hired, the clients had buyer's remorse because the space in their Bay Harbor Islands home appeared cramped. Corredor tore down the wall that partitioned off the kitchen and created an open area. The art is from the clients' collection.

Philosophy for using art: "Art is a very personal thing," she says. "When I am choosing art I want it to tell a story about the client and add color and vibrancy to the space."

Influence of Art Basel: Corredor works with a lot of artists and many of the artworks she uses are custom designed. Art Basel is a way for her to discover new artists.

Best advice: "It all has to work with what is being done in the apartment," she says. "If we hung the art straight across in this room it wouldn't have the same feeling. You can appreciate each piece separately."

Corredor used the client's art in this Bay Harbor Islands home. The orange painting in the left is by Manuel Garcia, the two next to it are by Colombian artists. The girl sitting on the bench on the right is La Mona by a Mexican artist.